PREFACE.

THIS dictionary is founded in part on my own stories and collections, in part on unpublished MSS. by Schlenker and Knödler, for the loan of which I am indebted to the authorities of the Church Missionary Society. It has been impossible to revise the whole of the data with a native; there are, therefore, certain omissions, and, in particular, many homonyms which further knowledge would show to be distinguished either by length of vowel, quality of vowel, or tone.

N. W. THOMAS.

PHONETIC SYSTEM.

Consonants.

TIMNE-ENGLISH DICTIONARY.

TIMNE-ENGLISH DICTIONARY.

(a) Nouns are classified under roots, i.e., prefixes are discarded and the first consonant decides the place of the noun in alphabetical arrangement.

Thus kə-lęṅ will be found under lęn.

(b) But monosyllables (non-separable prefixes) are arranged under the first letter, which is necessarily a vowel.

(c) Foreign forms and

(d) Words of uncertain or anomalous form, e.g., yeṭ, are placed alphabetically.

Look for words in a after removing second prefix, e.g., akə-bali under bali.

(e) After each noun is given the plural prefix, where it was ascertained. Where a second plural form is given to the name of a tree, it is the name of the fruit.

Verbs and adjectives are printed without prefix; search must be made under the prefix letter of noun for corresponding adjective or verb, e.g., mǫnę appears as a noun under o, as an adjective under m.
